

BANDITS NOW INVADING HOTELS

Fashionable Hostelry in N.
Y. Scene of Sensational Robbery

(INTERNATIONAL NEWS SERVICE)
NEW YORK, Dec. 16.—Police hoped today to round up two bandit "pals" of Lawrence Lindhorne, 22, of Hammond, Ind., who, together staged the most sensational hold-up in weeks by invading the rooms of two men and two women at the Hotel Astor.

Although covered by Mrs. Owen C. Linthwaite and H. L. Wurley, New Jersey suburbanites began to battle the robbers. Mrs. Linthwaite and Mrs.
Wurley assisted their husbands in the fight which raged for half an hour wrecking the room. Not until Mrs.
Linthwaite broke a window on the second floor was attention attracted to the males.

When police arrived they found the four guests sitting on Lindhorne, who had been knocked unconscious. In his pockets, officials were rings and bracelets snatched from the women.

The two thugs who escaped had managed to snatch $82 from Linthwaite's pocket.

The women were suffering today from kicks and blows delivered by the robbers. Their frocks were torn in the struggle to aid their husbands.

DIRIGIBLE IS STILL MISSING

NEW YORK, Dec. 16.—Still confident that no accident had occurred to the spherical naval balloon, which set out Monday for a test trip to Canada, officers at the naval air station at Rockaway Point, L. I., said today they were without any word regarding the flight.
The balloon carried Lieut. Walter Hinston, an officer of the NC 4 on its trans-Atlantic flight, and Lieutenant Stephen A. Farrell and A. L. Elmer.

Officers at the air station declined to speculate as to what the balloons had not reported on where the balloon might be.

The crew carried provisions sufficient to last for several days.
